

Toronto Lawyers ASSOCIATION

Thursday Tips with LAWPRO and TLA:
Building Resilience and Maintaining
Mental Health in the Legal Profession

November 2, 2023

Program materials

Understanding mental health in the legal profession	1
Debunking the “lone sufferer” myth once and for all (by Doron Gold)	4
The Member Assistance Program	6
Homewood Pathfinder Explained	7
Using the MAP to find a healthier way.....	17
Warning Signs: Why it’s important to be proactive about mental health	21
Emotional intelligence: The essential skill for the workplace and life (by Mahwash Khan)	25
Putting the fire out: Dealing with the stress of a malpractice claim (by Martine M. Morin).....	29
Mindfulness and Lawyer Well-Being (by Dr. Thomas G.W. Telfer)	31
Additional Resources	33
Speaker bios	34

This resource is provided by Lawyers’ Professional Indemnity Company (LAWPRO®). The material presented does not establish, report, or create the standard of care for lawyers. The material is not a complete analysis of any of the topics covered, and readers should conduct their own appropriate legal research.

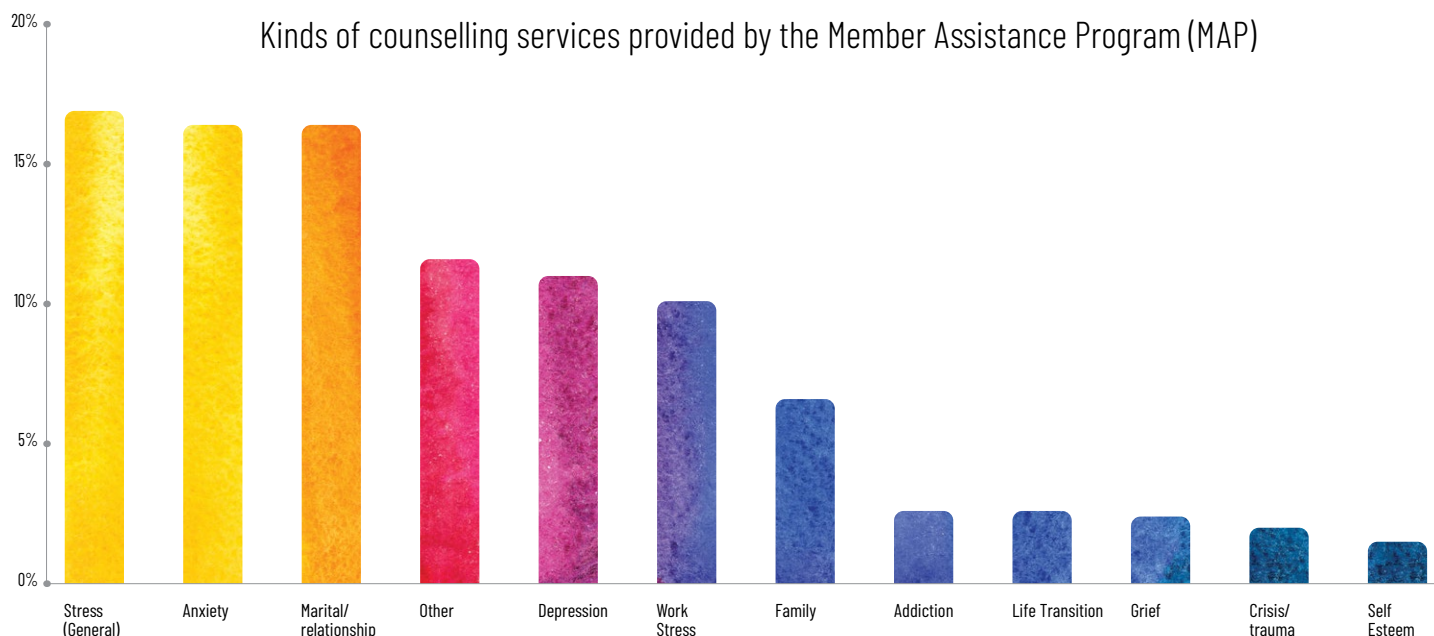

© 2023 Lawyers’ Professional Indemnity Company (LAWPRO). All rights reserved.
® Registered trademark of Lawyers’ Professional Indemnity Company

lawpro.ca
Tel: 416-598-5800 or 1-800-410-1013
Fax: 416-599-8341 or 1-800-286-7639
Email: practicepro@lawpro.ca

Understanding mental health in the legal profession

Herman Melville wrote that the legal profession is one where “misery hides aloof, so we deem that misery there is none.” In Melville’s story of Bartleby, the Scrivener, a solicitor watches this silent misery slowly consume and destroy his copyist, Bartleby. Although Melville wrote his tragedy about depression in the legal profession in 1853, it is a story that is still all-too familiar.

The mental health challenges of a career in law have been ignored for many years. Unaddressed, they can affect both quality of life for the lawyer and quality of legal service received by clients. These challenges can be a contributing cause of malpractice claims. But recent efforts to shine attention on wellness and mental health bring the promise of positive change in the future.

According to the Mental Health Commission of Canada, in any given year, one in five Canadians will struggle with mental illnesses such as depression, severe anxiety, or stress disorders. While elevated wealth or status ordinarily decreases the risk of mental illness, the opposite is observed in the legal profession. The American Bar Association (ABA) found that almost a third of practising lawyers in the United States were struggling with some level of depression, and between 21 and 36 per cent qualified as problem drinkers. According to a recent study conducted at the University of Toronto, not only are lawyers in Canada and the United States more likely to suffer from mental illness than the public at large, but, paradoxically, lawyers with higher paying and higher status jobs are more likely to self-report depression and poor health than lawyers with lower-status positions.¹

These consequences often manifest early in a legal career. The Member Assistance Program (MAP), which provides mental health services to Ontario legal professionals, sees demand highest from those in their 20s and 30s. As shown in the pie chart on the next page, the successful up-and-comer is often the one struggling with many of these issues.

There's evidence that the elevated income associated with a legal career only partially mitigates the deleterious health consequences of being overworked, overstressed, and burdened with the sometimes substantial work-life conflict that comes with it. The health consequences are wide-ranging and often serious. The MAP sees demand in the legal profession for counselling services relating to a variety of psychological issues, as the bar chart above illustrates.

The severity of these mental health afflictions can range from manageable to life-threatening, but a lawyer does not need to be in crisis before their mental health can have a serious negative impact on their life.

Bringing lawyers' mental health into the light

In 2016, the Law Society of Ontario (LSO) adopted a new Mental Health Strategy intended to address the importance of mental health to the ability of lawyers to meet their professional responsibilities. The report prescribed a comprehensive communication strategy for addressing issues of stigma related to mental illness and addictions and the possible systemic causes of such within the legal profession. Similarly, the Canadian Bar Association recently partnered with Bell's "Let's Talk" public awareness program in an effort to address the harmful negative culture associated with mental health issues, particularly in the legal profession. It's these efforts to normalize treatments directed at mental illness that are seen as key to addressing health problems in the legal profession.

¹ Jonathan Koltai et al, "The Status-Health Paradox: Organizational Context Stress Exposure, and Well-being in the Legal Profession," Journal of Health and Social Behavior, 2017

The LSO, the ABA, and other similar organizations now explicitly acknowledge that self-care and wellness are part of a lawyer's obligation to provide competent services to the public. But entrenched cultural norms, embarrassment, and fear of discrimination often hold lawyers back from taking steps to treat mental illnesses before they get out of hand. Usage statistics from the MAP suggest that legal professionals in Ontario currently seek mental health assistance at a rate that is approximately half that of other professions. This has serious consequences. A report prepared for the New York State Lawyer Assistance Trust estimated that 40 to 70 per cent of attorney discipline proceedings and malpractice actions are linked to alcohol abuse or a mental illness.

Allowing oneself or others to suffer in silence is not acceptable from either a humane or professional perspective. The legal profession has matured slowly but substantially since the days of Melville and Bartleby, and today more lawyers recognize that mental health problems can and do affect a substantial number of their colleagues, and potentially themselves. It is not uncommon, it is not shameful, but it is serious. And it is necessary to address these problems with self-care and treatment through resources like the MAP.

The benefits of asking for help

Although some may act invincible, lawyers are still human. Yet despite the substantial educational pre-requisites to practise law, most lawyers have little or no education in managing self-care and mental wellness. Acknowledging that help may be needed is simply acknowledging that one is not an expert in mental health. Too many lawyers neglect self-care and allow their quality-of-life and practice to suffer.

Doron Gold, a senior clinician who has been with the MAP since its creation in 2013 suggests the following self-reflection: "You are your own best judge of whether your life is going as you want—whether you feel like your life is on a good track and is in control. And if there's a deviation from that, if you're finding that you're not performing as well at work, or you're finding it hard to get out of bed or get your work done, maybe you shouldn't have to put up with that."

He hopes that lawyers realize that "they are one of a few tens of thousands in the profession, all of whom struggle at a given time and sometimes need help." The fact is, "if you can reach out for help and not worry that somehow it will reflect badly on you, there's a very good chance that you're going to heal, get back to fully functioning, and get some relief." ■

Use of MAP resources by age range in 2018

Debunking the 'lone sufferer' myth once and for all

Conventional wisdom in our society about lawyers is that they're high achieving, productive, successful, disciplined, pulled-together people. They're 'pick themselves up by their bootstraps' types. For prospective clients, it's reassuring to think that the person you rely on to negotiate your deal or fight for your rights in court is solid and true, unfettered by the petty personal problems that plague the average Joe or Jane. Also true is that members of the profession themselves readily buy into this stereotype.

Undoubtedly, legal professionals are achievers. You cannot get into law school, let alone graduate, complete articles, get called and practise, without significant fortitude and ability. Running that gauntlet is no small feat, especially when you take into account that life is not only about professional endeavours but also involves personal pursuits such as marriage, raising children, caring for aging parents, keeping healthy and leisure.

And so, there's no question that we're an impressive bunch. It's no accident then that non-lawyers are almost always impressed when they discover a specific person is a lawyer – even if they view the profession generally in a negative light. More than one member of the bar has heard an individual waxing indignant over the transgressions of the legal profession – lawyer jokes included – only to then, once advised as to the listener's vocation, utterly gush over that person's admirable professional status. It can all be very confusing.

Still more confusing is the assumption that legal professionals are immune from personal distress. Take, for example, the family lawyer engaged in a pitched battle with opposing counsel over every issue that arises in a matter. While many counsel keep it civil and are even professionally friendly with the other side, many more attempt to maintain a veneer of emotional detachment and super-control. They're on top of every detail and fear nothing. To quote Sun Tzu: "Invincibility is in oneself, vulnerability is in the opponent." When in battle, to some it makes only good sense to put up a strong, invulnerable front. It intimidates. It demoralizes. And it deprives the adversary of ammunition.

The reality behind the façade

Without question, many lawyers live healthy, productive lives. When they come across as 'together', it's because, by and large, they are.

But what of the other significant segment of these professionals? What of the litigator who boisterously plows through adversary after adversary in court, but can't find a way to stop herself from finishing a bottle or two of wine on her own once she reaches home at night, with all of the attendant destructive consequences this poses to her health, family and career? What of the articling student who can't seem to find a job no matter how many interviews he gets, with the spectre of the Call quickly approaching? He can't help but fear that all of his work was for naught because the big bad legal profession won't let him in, and he's got loans to pay off and a family to support, not to mention a career to build. What about the associate who needs to keep it together and meet her billing targets while suffering from debilitating depression and anxiety that make it hard to even get out of bed in the morning?

These vignettes are not anomalies in an otherwise idyllic system. Each day, the Ontario Lawyers' Assistance Program (OLAP) fields calls from lawyers, judges and members of their families across Ontario struggling with various forms of stress and distress.

We're not understating the situation when we say that issues such as depression, addiction and anxiety disorders, among many others, are more the rule than the exception throughout the Ontario bar. As hard as it is for many to believe, we have among us heroin addicts, those with bipolar disorder, gambling addicts and those paralyzed by fear and anxiety. They suffer terribly. More disturbingly, they usually suffer alone.

The inspiration for the topic of this article is the shockingly consistent strain that runs through the experience of most of the lawyers suffering these divergent challenges: They think they're the only ones out there like them. Like clockwork, OLAP staff wait for the question and more often than not, it comes: "Is there anyone else out there going through this?"

OLAP can field 20 calls from those who suffer depression and 15 of them may separately proffer this query, oblivious to the malady they share with so many others like them. And so, they suffer alone, convinced that they're weak, wrong, bad and with irretrievably flawed characters. After all, as was noted earlier, lawyers are bootstrap picker-uppers. They run gauntlets and survive. They defeat powerful enemies. "Then why can't I stop crying?" "Why am I letting my life disintegrate over this damn pill that I can't keep from taking?" "Why am I terrified to open that file?" "I'm a complete failure."

Why does this happen?

Many reading this will wonder if it's even true. It comes across as so unusual. "Just talk to someone!" or "Just get help!" is the default attitude.

The problem with that is two-fold. First, people have trouble self-diagnosing. It would not be unusual to hear a person declare that he is tired all the time, has lost interest in things he used to love doing, has trouble sleeping and often feels hopeless. Then he'll confidently declare: "But I'm not depressed."

The same holds true for addictions and even abusive situations. Have you ever come across a person in a physically and emotionally violent relationship who refuses to let you call it 'abuse'? The label is scary and unnerving. To many, it connotes failure. If you don't label it, maybe that's just the way life is.

The second problem is that once a person realizes she is at the end of her rope and just can't do it on her own, she may be too ashamed to reach out for the much-needed assistance. A lawyer who is used to figuring things out on his own and being a self-starter in his practice, vehemently resists the concept of reaching out. He muses: "I got myself into this, I can get myself out of it."

The problem is that in the throes of depression or addiction, one's reserves of resiliency are depleted. Besides, depression, addiction and other such diseases – and they are diseases – powerfully distort the perception of the sufferer. Minor challenges become pressures that are so overwhelming that for some, suicide seems the only escape. That's a distorted reality. That's what the disease does to a person.

Further, often you'll find a lawyer suffering from a condition that renders him or her terribly sad; and instead of getting treated or even simply being kind to him or herself, he or she will add a layer of self-abuse to an already painful circumstance. These people may heap frustration and abuse on themselves for what they perceive as failure or weakness. At the very time that they desperately need care, acceptance and the total absence of judgment, they judge themselves more harshly than anyone else would. It's a self-sustaining system and in all of it, they convince themselves that they're the only one of their peers going through this.

Let the myth die here

From the perspective of a helping professional able to see the larger picture, the irony of 20 people suffering the same affliction all believing they're the only one might be amusing, were it not so utterly sad and debilitating. That belief keeps those individuals from reaching out for help when that help is readily available and undeniably effective. They're ashamed. They need to know that they're not the only one. They haven't identified their dearth of character, they've illuminated their humanity. All of us, from time to time, face challenges that seem insurmountable. That's not failure, it's life.

So let's put this 'Lone Sufferer' myth to bed once and for all. We in the profession share not only our professional pursuits and accomplishments, we share also a humanity that allows us to sometimes be vulnerable to disease or hardship without it connoting a personal failing. We share not only keen intellect but also the emotional resiliency to face down personal distress – with the help of others – and to reclaim the lives we've worked so diligently to build. No one need suffer on their own, so long as they know they're not alone.

Doron J. Gold is a case manager at the Ontario Lawyers' Assistance Program. In addition, having previously practised law, he is now a Certified Personal Coach with a private coaching practice working primarily with lawyers. He can be reached at the OLAP offices at (toll free) 1-877-576-6227 or in the GTA at 905-238-1740.

Coaching. Counselling. Peer Support. Resources.

When you need it...

MAP is a confidential service funded by and fully independent of The Law Society of Upper Canada and LawPRO.

Who can access the MAP?

- ✓ Lawyers
- ✓ Paralegals
- ✓ Judges
- ✓ Licensing process candidates
- ✓ Ontario law school students
- ✓ Students at accredited paralegal colleges

Includes spouse and children

PROFESSIONAL AND CONFIDENTIAL SERVICES

Homewood Health is a trusted Canadian company with more than 3 decades of experience providing the best possible support to clients like you. Your confidentiality is guaranteed through an individual's right to privacy protection and enforced within the limits of the law. No personal identifying information whatsoever is disclosed to the Law Society of Upper Canada or LAWPRO.

Online Resources

Access www.myassistplan.com anytime for e-learning, interactive tools, health and wellness assessments, and a library of health, life balance, and workplace articles.

Peer-To-Peer Support

Receive confidential, non-judgmental, support from a legal fellow professional or student who has gone through similar experiences.

⬇ Please retain the card below for your records.

Counselling | Coaching | Support

1.855.403.8922

TTY: 1.866.433.3305

International (Call collect): 514.875.0720

www.myassistplan.com

Confidential. Available anytime.

Counselling

6

Counselling helps you take practical and effective steps to improve your well-being in a confidential environment.

You can receive counselling from the most highly trained and experienced therapists in the industry who specialize in helping people with:

Stress · Anxiety · Substance Abuse
Burnout · Marital/Family Issues
Depression · Life Transition/Change
Anger · Career · Grief/Bereavement
Other Personal Issues

Our counselling is available in person, by telephone, or online. With a provincial network of hundreds of counsellors, appointments are made quickly. We do our best to accommodate your preferences.

Life Smart Coaching

You can also receive coaching on a variety of subjects:

Life Balance

- Childcare and Parenting
- Elder and Family Care
- Legal
- Financial

Health

- Jumpstart your Wellness
- Smoking Cessation
- Nutrition

Career

- Career Planning
- Workplace Issues
- Pre-Retirement
- Shift Work

Call 1.855.403.8922

Your future forward Member Assistance Program

It's about choice. You select your preferred care approach from:

- A fully 'live' experience,
- A fully virtual experience, or
- A blended experience

Nobody can do what Pathfinder does

It's MAP simplified. It's a validated stepped care approach to your overall mental health and wellness developed through almost 140 years of mental health leadership and over 40 years of MAP experience.

Pathfinder tailors personalized care plans and service recommendations based on your unique presenting concern(s). It includes an assessment of the severity of your concern and combines the optimal clinical solution with your unique preferences to create a customized and curated care path.

Choices

Counselling that's convenient for you.

In Pathfinder, you can book an appointment through our on-line booking system. There is no cost to you. Offices are local and appointments are made quickly, with your convenience in mind. Have a preference for location or appointment time? We'll do our best to accommodate your preferences.

Life Smart Coaching

You can receive coaching support for a variety of life balance and health issues, or get expert support to better manage your career. Life Smart Coaching services are available by phone.

Health

- Nutrition
- Lifestyle Changes
- Jumpstart your Wellness
- Smoking Cessation

Life Balance

- Elder and Family Care
- Relationships
- Financial
- Legal
- Grief and Loss
- Stress Solutions

Career

- Career Planning
- Workplace Issues
- Pre-Retirement
- Shift Work

Online Resources

The right information at the right time

Access www.myassistplan.com anytime for a wealth of expert tools and resources, including e-learning courses and a library of health and wellness articles which keep you informed about where you are in your journey and what's available to enhance your experience and outcomes.

Sentio by Homewood Health™

Sentio is Homewood's internet-based Cognitive Behavioural Therapy (iCBT) program. iCBT has been proven to be an effective therapy for mild to moderate depression, anxiety and other psychological mental health issues.

Sentio contains over 20 treatment goals plus a wealth of tools and resources to help you change your thought patterns and improve your mood.

What is Homewood MeetNow?

Where clinically appropriate, you can chat with a professional immediately. One click is all it takes. There's no booking and no waiting.

If you do not wish to MeetNow, simply select your preferred counsellor, your preferred date and time and your choice to meet telephonically or online through video. It's that simple.

Counselling

For all of life's challenges

We offer a supportive, confidential and caring environment and will provide you with counselling for any challenge:

- Family
- Depression
- Marital
- Life transitions/ change
- Relationships
- Grief/Bereavement
- Addictions
- Stress
- Anxiety
- Other personal issues

Member Assistance Program

Coaching | Counselling | Support
Confidential | Available anytime

Contact Information

Contact us 24 hours a day, 7 days a week

1-855-403-8922

International (Call collect): 604-689-1717

www.myassistplan.com

Votre Programme d'aide aux membres

C'est une question de choix.

- un service « de vive voix » par téléphone;
- un service virtuel; ou
- un service mixte.

Personne d'autre ne peut offrir ce qu'offre l'interface Parcours de Homewood.

L'interface Parcours est une fonctionnalité de pointe améliorée offerte sur la plateforme Homeweb, qui tient compte non seulement de la nature et de l'intensité de votre problème, mais aussi de vos préférences, pour vous offrir le bon service au bon moment.

L'interface Parcours crée un plan de soins personnalisé et offre des recommandations de service en fonction de votre problème. Elle évalue la gravité de vos préoccupations et combine la meilleure solution en matière de PAM avec vos préférences pour créer un parcours de soins personnalisés adapté à vos besoins.

Différentes options de counseling

Un counseling adapté à votre mode de vie.

La plateforme Parcours vous permet de prendre rendez-vous via notre ligne sans frais pour l'utilisateur. Nous avons des bureaux partout au pays et les rendez-vous sont offerts rapidement, au moment qui vous convient. Une préférence quant à l'endroit et à l'heure du rendez-vous? Nous ferons de notre mieux pour satisfaire vos demandes.

Coaching IntelliVie

Obtenez des séances téléphoniques de coaching pour une grande variété de questions relatives à la santé, la qualité de vie, la conciliation travail - vie personnelle ou la gestion de votre carrière.

- | Santé | Équilibre de vie | Carrière |
|------------------------------|--|--------------------------------|
| • Nutrition | • Soutien aux aidants naturels (aînés/ enfants/conjoint) | • Planification de carrière |
| • Changements au mode de vie | • Solutions relationnelles | • Difficultés au travail |
| • Parcours mieux-être | • Conseils financiers | • Planification de la retraite |
| • Abandon du tabac | • Conseils juridiques | • Travail par quarts |
| | • Deuil et pertes affectives | |
| | • Solutions anti-stress | |

Ressources en ligne

La bonne information au bon moment

Vous pouvez consulter la plateforme www.myassistplan.com à toute heure du jour ou de la nuit pour y trouver une multitude de ressources et d'outils spécialisés, y compris des cours en ligne et une bibliothèque d'articles sur la santé et le bien-être qui vous permettent de suivre de près votre parcours et de vous tenir au courant des ressources mises à votre disposition pour améliorer votre expérience et accélérer votre rétablissement.

Sentio par Homewood Santé^{MC}

Sentio est la thérapie cognitivo-comportementale (TCC) en ligne de Homewood Santé. La TCC en ligne s'est révélée une intervention efficace pour soigner la dépression, l'anxiété et d'autres symptômes psychologiques allant de légers à modérés.

Sentio contient plus de vingt plans de traitements ainsi qu'une multitude d'outils et de ressources pour vous aider à changer vos schèmes de pensée, à améliorer votre humeur ou à soigner votre anxiété.

En quoi consiste la fonction Rencontre immédiate?

Lorsque cela est cliniquement justifié, vous pouvez parler immédiatement à un conseiller. Un seul clic suffit. Aucun rendez-vous à prendre, aucun délai d'attente.

Si vous ne souhaitez pas utiliser cette fonction, vous pouvez plutôt sélectionner votre conseiller, vos date et heure de disponibilité, ainsi que la modalité de votre choix, soit par téléphone, soit par vidéoconférence. C'est aussi simple que ça.

Counseling

Faire face aux défis de la vie

Votre Programme d'aide aux membres et à leur famille vous aide à prendre des mesures pratiques et efficaces pour améliorer votre qualité de vie et vous épanouir. Nous offrons un milieu favorable, confidentiel et attentionné, et vous fournissons des conseils pour toutes les épreuves :

- | | |
|--------------------------|-----------------------------------|
| • Problèmes familiaux | • Transitions de vie |
| • Difficultés conjugales | • Deuil |
| • Problèmes relationnels | • Stress |
| • Dépendances | • Autres difficultés personnelles |
| • Anxiété | |
| • Dépression | |

Programme d'aide aux membres

Coaching | Counseling | Soutien
Services confidentiels | Accessibles en tout temps

Nous contacter

Communiquez avec nous en tout temps.

1 855 403-8922

Appels internationaux

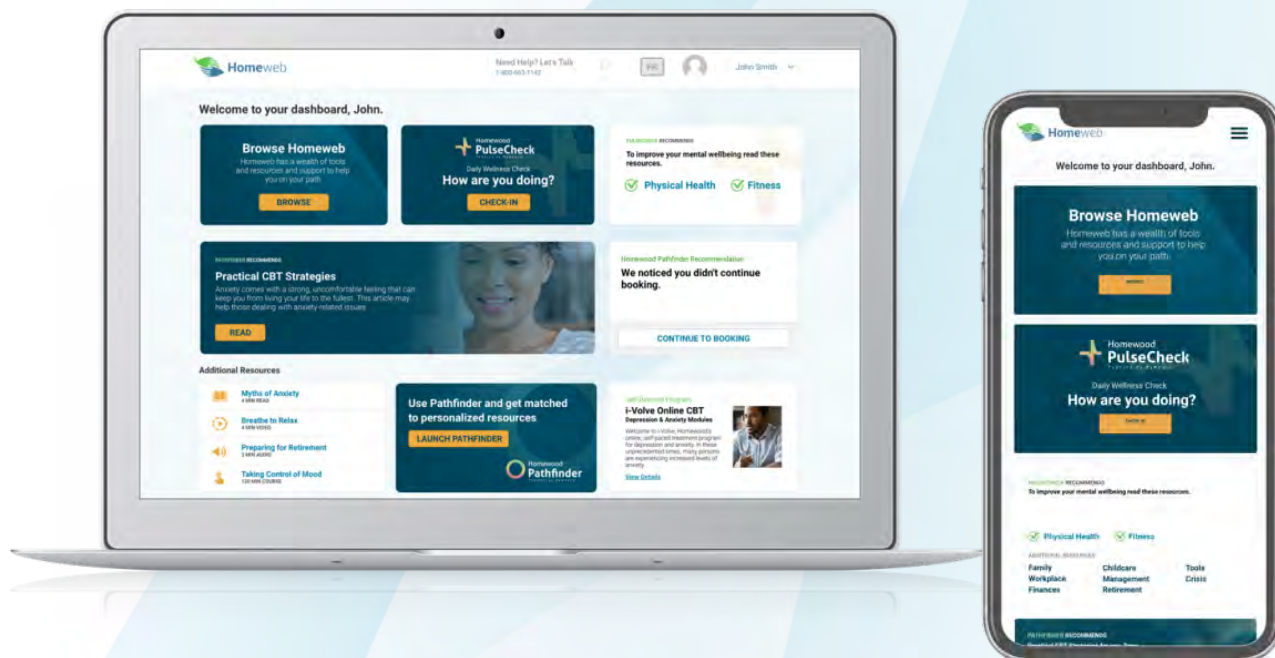

(frais virés acceptés) : 514 875-0720

www.myassistplan.com

Your Member Assistance Program Evolved MAP making a difference.

Welcome to the Homewood Pathfinder Suite. We trust you've heard of the new Homeweb experience, with intuitive functionality that enhances your Member Assistance Program experience.

The new platform is seamless and simplified - supported through a wealth of tools and resources available with a simple click.

Empower yourself and engage in your own Pathfinder journey. It tailors personalized care plans and service recommendations based on your unique needs. Pathfinder assesses the severity, understands your preferences, and delivers the clinically appropriate service or solution instantly.

Pathfinder offers you unique and personalized tools, resources, and support.

As you navigate and discover the extent of Pathfinder's capabilities, you may have questions from time to time. Here is a summary of common questions often raised.

Homewood Pathfinder | Frequently Asked Questions

Why are you asking for my cell/mobile number?

Having your mobile number allows us to support you with proactive engagement and timely recommendations. In certain scenarios, having your cell number enables Pathfinder to send you reminders or information relevant to your case.

How does Homewood MeetNow differ from a regular counselling case?

These support sessions are one-at-a-time, and just-in-time. The service is there to help people who don't necessarily need multiple sessions and also those that wish to forgo booking and waiting for a specific individual. If you have a MeetNow session, you may also benefit from the wealth of tools and information found on MyAssistPlan.com.

What do I need to know about my privacy & confidentiality?

Homewood takes regular steps to ensure client privacy and confidentiality and our Homeweb platform, including Homewood Pathfinder has been fully examined, tested and validated by a leading national cybersecurity organization.

We guarantee your confidentiality. We have always focused on your confidentiality, and nothing has changed. Your privacy is foundational to our core business values and ethical practices. Homewood Pathfinder delivers professional, confidential, and proactive services to support you with a wide range of concerns. Everyone can expect confidentiality within the limits of the law. You won't be identified to anybody — including your employer.

What is Homewood PulseCheck and how does it work?

It's an industry leading process that allows us to tailor services, delivering both timely and effective support to meet your individual needs. PulseCheck is a simple slider that asks how you're doing and based on your response; it lets us know whether you're at risk and in need of support or if you're feeling good. Wellness is a journey. We all experience good and bad days from time to time, pulse check looks at your trends and adapts service and support recommendations based on your overall progress.

How do you arrive at recommendations?

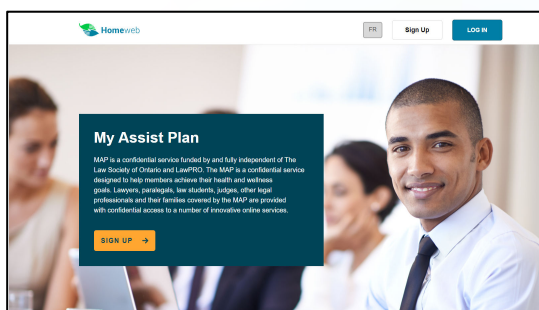

Our recommendations are evidence-based and encompass the learnings achieved through our multi-disciplinary teams. Through proprietary algorithms, Homewood Pathfinder combines the power of technology with clinical knowledge supported by 40 years of experience and almost 140 years of mental health leadership and expertise to deliver the most appropriate service or resource at the right time.

How Do I register?

If you already have an account set up, simply login to MyAssistPlan.com using your existing user credentials to access Pathfinder.

If you are not registered, follow these few steps:

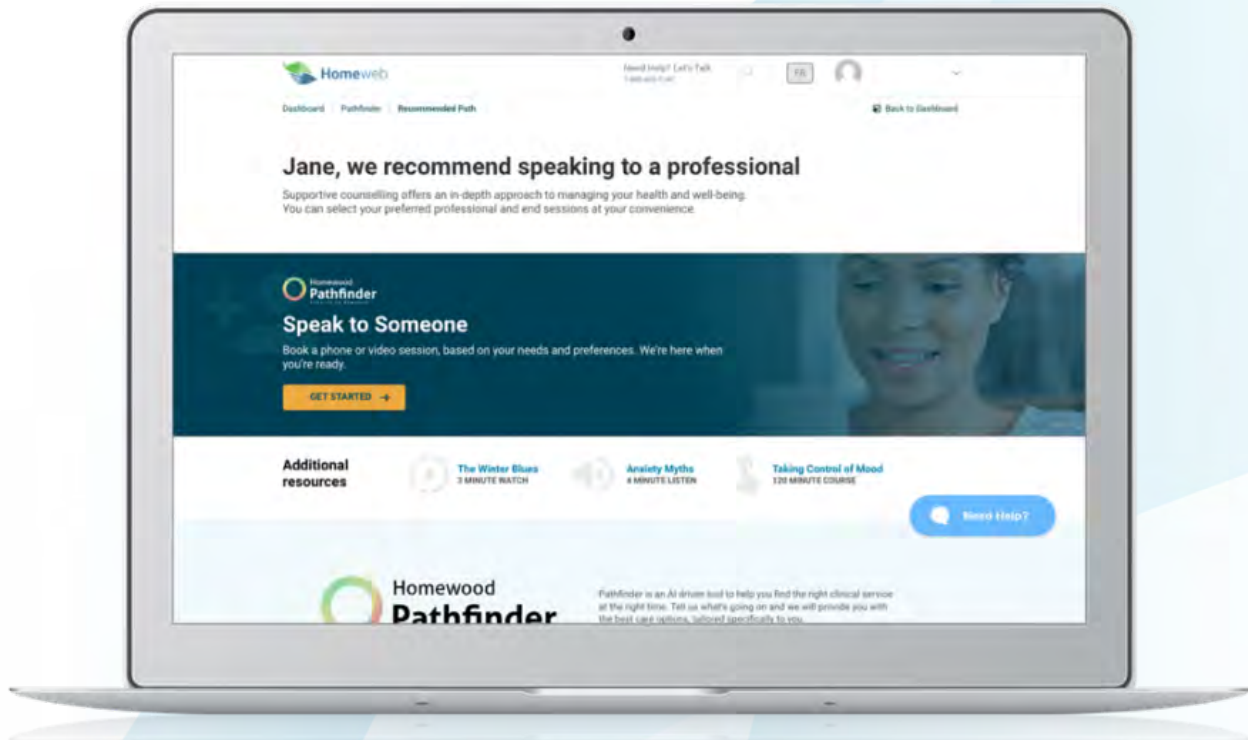

1: Visit: MyAssistPlan.com and click on SIGN UP

2: Enter your name, preferred email address and a few other pieces of information to create your profile

3: A key component of Pathfinder, Homewood PulseCheck will ask for a few additional details including how you're feeling and your primary area of interest or concern

4: That's it. Welcome to Homewood Pathfinder and the start of your simplified and innovative Member Assistance Plan journey how Are you doing?

MAP Evolved

Homewood PulseCheck

Powered by Homeweb

Get Started Today

check-in

Tell us how you are - using a simple slider. We use this information to track how you are feeling over time. Receive resource recommendations tailored to your response.

How are you doing, Lukas?

Use the slider below to describe how you're feeling.

- CHECK-IN WHEN YOU VISIT
- QUICK & EASY
- SIMPLE SLIDER
- PERSONALIZED FOR YOU
- RESOURCE RECOMMENDATIONS
- DESKTOP, MOBILE, OR ANY DEVICE
- TELL US HOW YOU'RE DOING

Homewood
Health | Santé

MyAssistPlan.com

Homewood
PulseCheck
Powered by Homeweb

what Are you looking for?

MAP Evolved

Homewood Pathfinder

Powered by Homeweb

Get Started Today

guided journeys

Through triage, assessment and service offerings based entirely on your unique needs and preferences. A new way to get help just for you and only we can do it.

Lukas, we recommend this resource

Sometimes, engaging in an online course is all that's needed or may be all you're looking for. Check out a few resources and if you feel you need more support, come back and use Pathfinder again for additional guidance.

- NEW DIGITAL HOMEWEB EXPERIENCE
- DAILY CHECK-INS
- CUSTOM TRIAGE
- EXPERT ASSESSMENTS
- PERSONALIZED SERVICE OFFERINGS
- ADDITIONAL RESOURCES
- INDIVIDUALIZED DASHBOARD

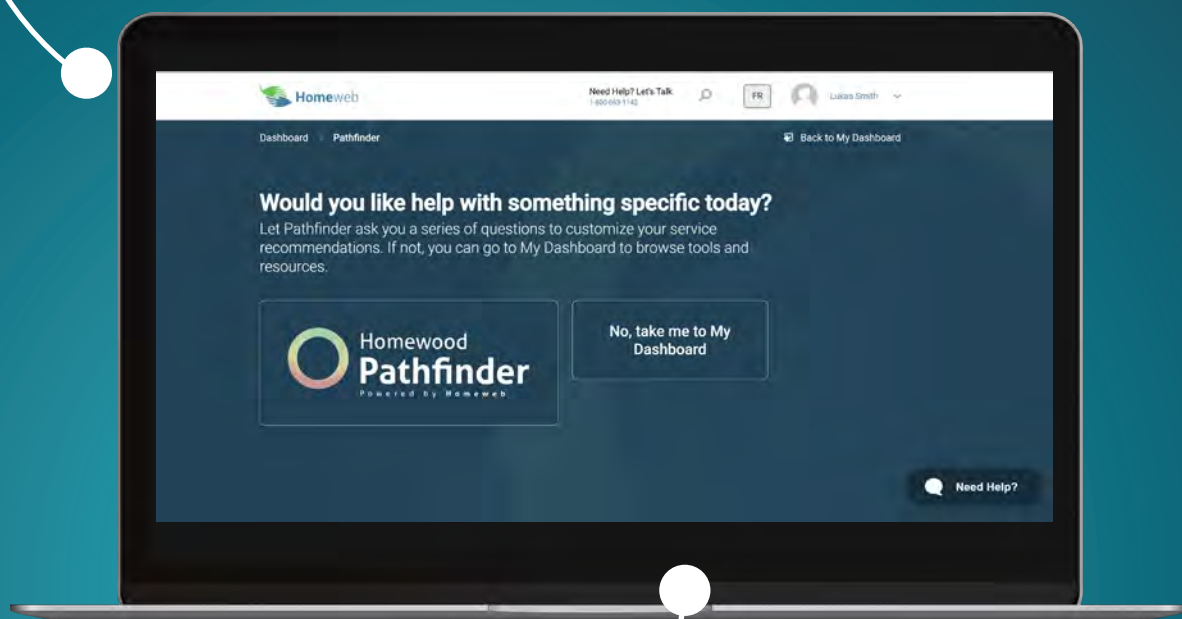

Homewood
Health | Santé

MyAssistPlan.com

Can we help you?

MAP Evolved

Get help online

- VALIDATED ASSESSMENTS
- GIVE YOUR FEEDBACK
- BOOK A PROFESSIONAL COUNSELLING OPTIONS
- FAST & EASY
- CALL US FOR SUPPORT

screeners & online booking

We use validated screeners for depression, anxiety, and trauma as well as for other presenting issues. Booking a professional is smooth and fast. You always have access to our professional Intake consultants 24/7 if you want a hand.

Select a date and time with a professional of your choice

Note: Days with a blue circle have open appointments

April
MON	TUE	WED	THU	FRI	SAT	SUN
29	30	31	1	2	3	4
5	6	7	8	9	10	11
12	13	14	15	16	17	18
19	20	21	22	23	24	25
26	27	28	29	30	1	2

Dev note: when date is selected, we need to jump down to the list of counsellors, or find a way to make the calendar smaller so both fit on screen.

For more than English or French please call at 1-800-468-1143. For English and French please use the screen.

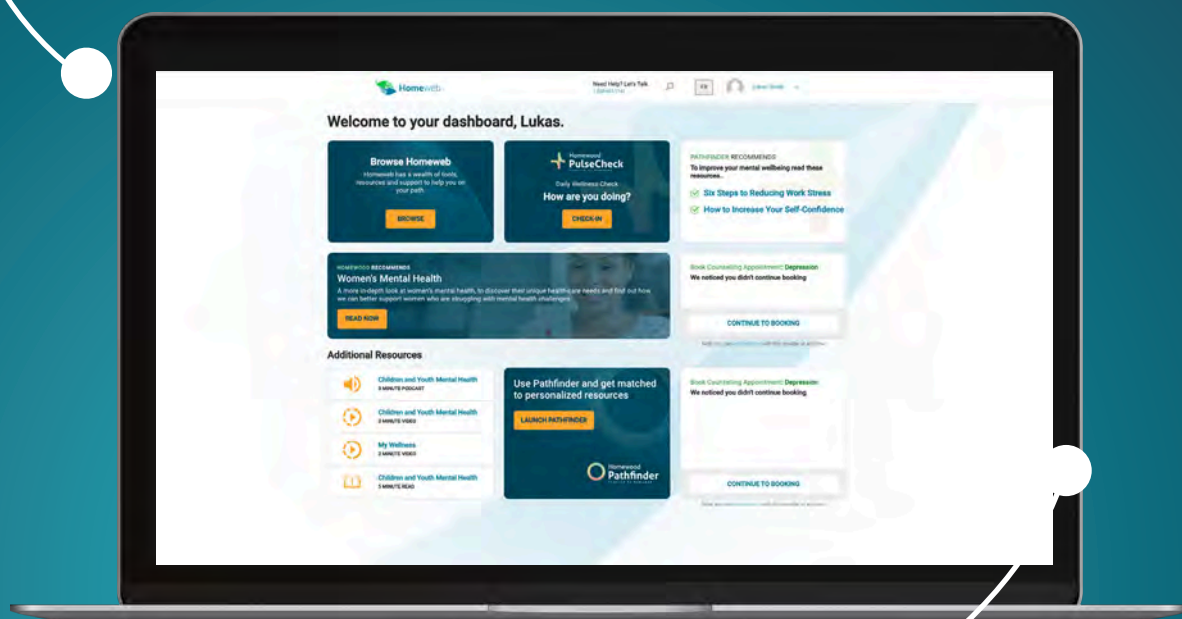

Homewood
Health | Santé

MyAssistPlan.com

how Do you know what's next?

MAP Evolved

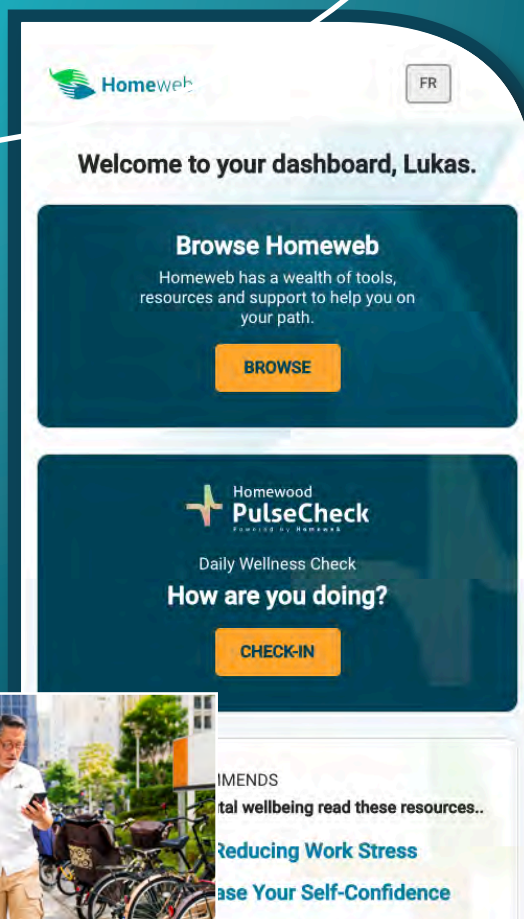

Your access hub

My Dashboard

the heart of the Pathfinder experience. It's a place to start new Pathfinder journeys, access specific resources, check-in on counselling appointments or simply browse Homeweb.

- BROWSE HOMEWEB
- ACCESS PULSE CHECK
- FOLLOW HOMEWOOD RECOMMENDATIONS
- USE PATHFINDER
- BOOK OR CHANGE COUNSELLING
- ADDITIONAL RESOURCES
- SELF-DIRECTED PROGRAMS

Homewood
Health | Santé

MyAssistPlan.com

Using the MAP to find a healthier way

Although compromised mental health within the legal profession has historically been a widespread and deeply rooted problem, increasing awareness and new resources are building a healthier, more resilient, and stronger profession. That's where myassistplan.com from the Member Assistance Program (MAP) comes in.

The MAP provides Ontario lawyers, paralegals, law students, judges, and family members, with free and confidential counselling, coaching, online resources, and peer volunteer assistance directed at issues related to career, family, finances, addiction, mental or physical health, and other fundamental aspects of their lives.

Operated by Homewood Health, an independent program provider, it is co-funded by the LSO and LAWPRO for the purpose of increasing lawyer wellness, productivity, job performance, and career satisfaction, and decreasing health-related practice disruptions and errors. In 2018, the MAP was recognized with the Employee Assistance Society of North America's Corporate Award of Excellence.

Registering online allows you to access the MAP's health library, including articles and interactive e-learning courses; receive lifestyle coaching on nutrition, smoking cessation, career planning, finance, retirement; or, schedule confidential counselling or peer-to-peer support sessions that can be held in-person, by phone, or online. See sidebar on page 11 for an overview of the resources the MAP offers.

MAP historical utilization

Growth and impact of the MAP

The true measure of success for the MAP and its resources is the increase in its use by the profession. In the five years it has been in operation, use of the program has more than tripled from approximately two per cent to almost seven per cent of lawyers, paralegals, and students in Ontario (see the graph on MAP historical utilization, to the right).

Increased usage of MAP resources since 2014 can be seen among all practice types, as shown in the graph below. Homewood Health expects usage to continue growing, eventually reaching approximately 10 per cent, which would be consistent with benchmarks from other industries and professions.

Distribution of lawyers using the MAP

PROFILE IN PEER SUPPORT

The MAP's peer support program pairs volunteer lawyers and paralegals with individuals calling for support. It can be scheduled in addition to or in substitution for traditional counselling services. Like every other aspect of the MAP, the peer support program is entirely confidential.

Distinct from the LSO's Coach and Advisor Network, which provides lawyers and paralegals with access to advice on substantive or procedural questions in their careers, the MAP's peer support program is aimed at guiding members through mental health struggles and the emotional impact of a legal career.

The purpose of the peer support program is to provide every struggling lawyer, paralegal, or student with a volunteer from the profession who can model recovery while providing empathy and understanding. These volunteers have also lived with mental health and wellness issues in the past and have continued to maintain successful and fulfilling careers.

One such volunteer is Beth Beattie, senior counsel with the Ministry of Health. Beth has been a peer volunteer since 2017, and she says the program is invaluable: "It truly is beneficial to be able to talk to a sympathetic ear, an ear that is experienced and can give perspective."

Beth's experience is twofold. First, as a lawyer with 24 years of experience in private practice and with the Government, and second as a woman with 15 years of experience dealing with a diagnosed mental illness.

"I have bipolar disorder, and I was closeted about it for 14 years. I didn't have a role model. I didn't know anyone else who had bipolar disorder. I just thought it would be so damaging to my career if word got out. So I kept it quiet for 14 years."

For Beth, the MAP's peer support program is an opportunity to provide hope and confidence to others struggling in the profession: "If I had a role model 15 years ago, I would not have lived so many years in angst, because I would have realized that people can have very successful outcomes despite having a major mental illness."

There are over 40 peers like Beth volunteering with the program. Members seeking assistance are matched to volunteers who have personal experience with subjects like substance abuse, depression, anxiety, or other mood disorders. Attributes like gender, age, race, and other criteria are taken into account when finding a peer with similar experience and with whom a member can identify, confide, and seek advice.

Once matched, the relationships are ongoing and indefinite. Beth speaks by phone with those she is matched with once every two weeks. "I was on the phone with a mentee for an hour and half yesterday," she says. "You cover a lot of ground. It's very practical things like putting together a to-do list, or things like office dynamics, or just general health. We talk about things like exercise and diet and medication—I really encourage them to do all of that."

Beth says she sees the benefit that the peer program provides: "When they're young, lawyers can get caught up in minutia—like 'oh my god, I didn't get that letter out as quickly as I was supposed to' or 'I missed that filing deadline'—and I'm able to say 'look, 95 per cent of things can be fixed. You're going to be able to fix this.' You put things in perspective. And I know that it helps them."

Beth sees positive changes being made in the legal profession when it comes to addressing mental health, but feels that much more work needs to be done: "As a profession, it's important for us to talk in our workplaces about mental health: how to get it, how to maintain it, where to go for help, and getting assistance from peers and colleagues. The most effective way to combat stigma is for people in the profession with mental illness to speak out."

"It truly is beneficial to be able to talk to a sympathetic ear, an ear that is experienced and can give perspective."

The importance of strict confidentiality

While use of the program continues to grow, one of the biggest barriers to accessing assistance for many members is their concerns about confidentiality. Doron Gold, a senior clinician with the MAP, takes these concerns very seriously. His response to hesitant lawyers worried that information provided to the MAP could be passed on to the Law Society, LAWPRO, or a third party is simple: “That simply does not happen.” Stigma, embarrassment, and concerns about confidentiality are all reasons given by members not to call the MAP. For Gold, these are reasons why he and his team “reiterate, and reiterate, and reiterate the sacrosanct nature of client confidentiality.”

Confidentiality is built into the structure of the MAP since there is no direct interaction between Homewood Health and the LSO or LAWPRO. All MAP-related communications occur through a third-party broker, and the only information provided to the LSO or LAWPRO by MAP administrators are aggregated and anonymized statistics. All personal information and records remain the property of Homewood Health and will not be released absent permission from the member, a court order, or a threat of harm to the member or others. ■

OVERVIEW OF MAP RESOURCES

The MAP offers a wide variety of online free resources available at myassistplan.com, along with in-person professional assistance.

Short and longer-term counselling

Confidential short-term and crisis counselling is available in-person, online, or over the phone from experienced therapists who specialize in issues such as stress, anxiety, substance abuse, depression, burnout, and other personal and mental health issues.

The MAP provides secure and private online counselling sessions, either through private and confidential message exchange, where a counsellor will respond to a private message within two business days, or through real-time interaction in a private chatroom environment via a secure web board, where all communications are confidential and private.

Longer-term counselling — up to 20 sessions — is available for members seeking treatment for depression or trauma related issues.

Peer-to-peer support

Designed specifically for members of the Ontario legal profession, the MAP's peer-to-peer support service connects members with a peer who has experienced and overcome the same issues they may be experiencing. For more information on the peer support program, see the sidebar titled “A profile in peer support” on page 10.

Lifestyle coaching

The MAP's “Life Smart” resources provide coaching on a variety of subjects such as childcare and parenting, elder and family care, financial and legal issues, nutrition and smoking cessation, as well as career, retirement, and workplace issues.

Self-directed e-Learning courses

A large online library of health and wellness assessments and self-directed learning resources, including videos, articles, podcasts and e-courses designed to improve personal health and well-being are available at myassistplan.com. Resources can be accessed on any desktop or through the mobile app.

Homewood offers licensees the ability to create an individual profile and receive guided, personalized content and recommendations, including a self-paced online cognitive behavioural program called “i-Volve.” Members can easily access articles on subjects such as anxiety, PTSD, grief and loss, mindfulness and meditation, understanding and treating depression, and myriad other topics, or take online courses that can be completed in a single sitting aimed at taking control of anger, career, stress, and other aspects of their lives.

12weekstowellness.com

Homewood also provides an online, goal-oriented wellness resource under the banner of “12 weeks to wellness.” Individuals set their own goals regarding lifestyle habits, weight, peace of mind, self-esteem, and other wellness aspects, and receive coaching while tracking their progress through assessments and a personal profile.

WARNING SIGNS:

Why it's important for lawyers and firms to be proactive about mental health

When lawyers ignore their mental health and fail to act on warning signs, they not only harm their quality-of-life and job satisfaction, they leave themselves open to a claim, or even a cluster of malpractice claims.

It's 10:00 p.m. Do you know where your associates are?

A lawyer's life can be a lonely one. Long hours spent in an office — reviewing documents, drafting letters, researching obscure points of law — can create a sense of isolation, even for lawyers practising in firms. This isolation can be harmful to a lawyer's mental health, and it can also prevent colleagues from realizing a problem exists and stepping in when a lawyer becomes overwhelmed.

Too often, a lawyer overwhelmed with professional and personal stress is left alone while files suffer, tasks remain unaddressed, deadlines are missed, and errors are made. In some cases, the overwhelmed lawyer's health suffers to the point of needing to step away.

When firms discover large clusters of claims

Martine Morin, Unit Director & Counsel with LAWPRO, has encountered situations where firms are forced to report clusters of claims after an overwhelmed colleague has stepped away from the files. She says this often appears to be the result of firms not responding to the needs of their associates. Overwork and lack of support from colleagues can create a snowball effect, where small problems start to multiply and grow, causing anxiety or stress, which in turn causes files to be left unattended.

Morin says that while these clusters of claims do arise in medium and large firms, they occur most often in smaller firms, where lawyers usually work alone on a particular file and therefore are not required to update colleagues on a regular basis. She stresses that firm partners need to remember that they may be responsible for the liability of their associates, and that a lack of oversight can create substantial costs down the road, including deductibles, claim surcharges, and levies.

Morin's advice is to ensure that lawyers are checking-in on each other. Partners, associates, and staff should be prepared to recognize red flags that suggest a lawyer has taken on too much or is otherwise struggling, and offer assistance or take steps to mitigate the stress on the colleague. Red flags can include: regularly failing to return phone calls or emails; leaving files to linger over long periods of time; "freezing" and being unable or unwilling to complete small and simple tasks; regular and unexplained absences; and, changes in personality or mood. Colleagues displaying these sorts of warning signs are often in need of assistance and may need encouragement to seek out wellness resources and speak to outside parties such as Ontario's Member Assistance Program ("MAP").

The dangers of not talking about mental health

One thing that prevents struggling lawyers from seeking assistance or notifying colleagues of problems as they develop is the stigma surrounding mental illness within the legal profession. Many lawyers will refrain from seeking assistance or even acknowledging a problem because they are concerned about negative repercussions and potential judgment from co-workers and management.

Not just talking the talk

Some firms have made great strides in building a healthy and resilient environment. Many are now encouraging their employees and lawyers to take advantage of services like those offered by the MAP, the LSO, or other organizations (see page 15 for more details).

According to Doron Gold, a senior clinician who has been with the MAP since its creation in 2013, those positive changes need to come from the top: “Once I did a webinar for the Law Society, and one of the questions was from a young lawyer who said ‘our firm has a yoga room, and I’m afraid to use it.’ The question was, ‘so what can the firm do to help with that?’ I said, ‘the managing partner needs to take up yoga.’ You need to have the buy-in from the highest levels, demonstrating tangibly that it’s not just lip-service—they mean it.”

Supporting mental health supports lawyers’ practices

Encouraging an honest and open approach to communicating about mental health is not just good for peace-of-mind, it’s good for client satisfaction. A positive and supportive working environment that avoids mental health stigma will flag potential health problems before they become file problems and may even prevent health problems from arising in the first place.

If you see a colleague or friend struggling with stress, anxiety, depression, or other mental health problems, it’s important to reach out. The first step to creating a healthier environment for everyone is dismantling the stigma and barriers that entrench isolation and prevent healing. ■

Three things you or your firm can do to help prevent large clusters of claims

1

Encourage positive communication about warning signs

Colleagues and support staff may be best situated to know if certain files are being left to linger or a lawyer is not responding to calls or important correspondence. Building a positive culture that responds to stress and mental health problems without judgment can prevent dangerous silence as claims pile up unbeknownst to colleagues.

2

Implement a claims notification policy

In both smaller and larger firms, management can put a policy in place to be notified whenever a claim is made against an associate or a potential claim is discovered. Inquiries can be made at that time as to whether this claim is symptomatic of larger problems, such as excessive workload or other issues.

3

Promote mental health resources for lawyers

Building a healthy workplace is a team effort. Lawyers, staff, and management can all choose to be open about the importance of mental health. Senior lawyers and management can set an example by taking advantage of lifestyle or health benefits offered by the firm. Even if a firm doesn’t subsidize lifestyle expenses or offer health benefits, lawyers can encourage one another to take advantage of the confidential assistance provided to all Ontario lawyers through the Member Assistance Program. For additional online resources available to Ontario lawyers, see page 15.

Online non-MAP wellness resources for lawyers

Mental Health and Wellness in the Legal Profession: cba.org/CBA-Wellness/Home

An online self-learning program created for lawyers, judges, and law students through a partnership among the Canadian Bar Association, the Mood Disorders Society of Canada, and Bell Let's Talk. It is designed to educate professionals on symptoms, treatment options, and prevention strategies for depression, anxiety, addiction, stress, and other mood disorders. It is accredited in all Canadian jurisdictions for CPD Ethics/Professionalism hours.

Well-Being Toolkit for Lawyers and Legal Employers: americanbar.org

A collection of information and resources compiled by the American Bar Association directed at promoting the well-being and health of lawyers, including an 8-step action plan for legal employers in developing and pursuing a wellness initiative.

Other Law Society of Ontario resources

The Law Society of Ontario provides members with additional assistance and aid that can complement the resources offered by the MAP. For lawyers seeking assistance, the following services are available:

Law Society of Ontario's Coach and Advisor Network (CAN): lsuc.on.ca/coachandadvisor

A mentorship program available to Ontario lawyers and paralegals that addresses short term substantive and procedural legal questions. Members are encouraged to contact the CAN for guidance and advice on resolving issues that arise in their practice. If a lawyer or paralegal is struggling with one or more problem files, the practice advice accessible through the CAN is complementary to the mental health and wellness support accessible through the MAP's peer-support program [see page 10 for more information on the peer support program].

Law Society of Ontario's Discrimination and Harassment Counsel

A confidential service that offers advice and support in circumstances where a lawyer has experienced or witnessed discrimination or harassment on human rights grounds. Support can include reviewing the available legal options or mediating a resolution. Discrimination violates the Ontario Human Rights Code, the Law Society's Rules of Professional Conduct, and the Paralegal Rules of Conduct, and the Discrimination and Harassment Counsel provides assistance in filing complaints with the Law Society of Ontario or with the Ontario Human Rights Tribunal.

Discrimination includes unwelcome comments or actions that relate to a person's personal characteristics, such as race, gender, sexual orientation, and age. Harassment is a form of discrimination and includes unwelcome comments or behaviour when such conduct might reasonably be expected to cause insecurity, discomfort, offence, or humiliation to another person. Typical examples include name calling, racial slurs and jokes, demands for sexual favours, sexual suggestive comments or gestures, and sexist jokes.

The Discrimination and Harassment Counsel may be reached on a confidential basis at 1-877-790-2200, or email: assistance@dhcounsel.on.ca

Emotional intelligence: the essential skill for the workplace and life

By Mahwash Khan

The concept of emotional intelligence isn't new but has seen exponential growth over the years and is said to be the essential skill in the workplace and in our personal lives.

We've all heard about the dichotomy of the heart and mind – it is at the centre of the concept of emotional intelligence. Stopping to think about what we are feeling prevents emotions taking charge of our behaviour.

Benefits of good emotional intelligence skills

- navigate social complexities and manage conflict
- overcome challenges
- empathize with others
- lead and motivate others
- improve overall physical and mental health by reducing stress and anxiety
- communicate effectively and forge stronger relationships

Building emotional Intelligence: 5 Practice Tips

Growing your emotional intelligence will take time, critical self-reflection and intentional effort. But the journey can be transformative.

Daniel Goleman, the leader in the field, sets out a number of EI components*:

1. Emotional self-awareness – awareness of one's own feelings, and an understanding of how those feelings can impact others
2. Self-regulation – managing one's own emotions and predicting their effects before acting on them
3. Empathy – sensing and understanding the emotions of others
4. Motivation – persevering through obstacles, with a growth mindset
5. Social skills – managing relationships, inspiring others and eliciting favourable responses from them

Everyone can continuously work to enhance their EI skills. Here are 5 tips that you can practice.

1. Enhance self-awareness

Pay attention to your emotions with mindfulness. If you are feeling a strong emotion, name the emotion and ask yourself why you might be experiencing it; what's causing it? By identifying emotions, you can lessen their power over you and manage them better. By acknowledging feelings, you can think logically about solutions.

How this helps your legal work: If you find yourself avoiding a file, dig deeper and try and think about what the reasons might be, and how you can approach the work. For example, are you nervous because you are afraid that the client won't be satisfied? Afraid to start because you don't understand the instructions? Avoiding the file because you are having difficulty managing your client relationship? Avoiding work on a file may lead to missed deadlines. Having a checklist with a tickler system can help with completing tasks on time.

2. Focus on self-regulation

The way we think and feel are intertwined. Thoughts can help regulate emotions, and balancing emotion with logic can help curb the instinct to act upon a strong emotion. Compare what your emotions are driving you to do against what logical reasoning is concluding. Are emotions clouding your judgment or are there holes in the logic?

Also, when feeling upset, take a break to calm yourself down and be very aware of how you act. Practice deep breathing - it tricks the brain to calm down.

How this helps your legal work: Before sending a heated response to opposing counsel, pause and reflect on whether such a response would be productive, and in your or your client's best interests.

3. Build empathy

We interact with people in many aspects of our lives. Putting yourself in someone else's shoes, actively listening to them and thinking about their perspective can help you examine your own perspective.

To empathize with someone doesn't mean you have to completely understand them - it's about accepting them for who they are – especially when you don't understand them. You learn to value their existence. When you empathize with other people, you can evoke a more positive response.

How this helps your legal work: Actively listening without making assumptions or judgments can help you better understand your clients concerns and help with formulating follow up questions to fill in any gaps.

4. Practice self-motivation

Emotionally intelligent people think more positively with a growth mindset and practice resilience during challenging times. This helps to stay motivated while also motivating others.

It's important not to underestimate the power of attitude. Our attitudes affect the people around us and can be infectious.

People who convince themselves that failures are due to something they can change don't give up easily. They continue to try and learn and believe that success depends on their own actions.

Practising gratitude can boost your happiness and increase your positivity.

How this helps your legal work: Seeking out mentors and networking with others in your community provides many benefits during challenging times. You and your families also have free access to the Member Assistance Program (“MAP”) - a confidential service to help you achieve your health and wellness goals.

5. Managing relationships

Understanding your own emotions and what drives your behaviours is a step towards working well with others. Body language and nonverbal communications can also play a role in relationship management. Your body language should match your words. Conversely, if you learn how to read other people’s nonverbal communication, you can plan your response accordingly.

Conflict is inevitable and can arise in any relationship. Resolving conflict in a constructive way can help build trust and strengthen relationships. When disagreeing with someone, point out exactly what you think should have been done, but also highlight what was done well. When conflict isn’t perceived as an attack, it fosters creativity.

How this helps your legal work: When communicating with clients, be transparent and empathetic. A detailed retainer letter setting out what you will (or will not) do is a good tool to manage your clients’ expectations. The same principles of constructive communication apply to other members of your firm.

How stretching your emotional intelligence muscles can make you a more effective lawyer:

1. Examining any strong emotions and slowing down before reacting leads to more efficiency and lessens the chance of misunderstanding
2. Self-awareness can help counter procrastination, resulting in not missing deadlines
3. Empathy and active listening can help you understand your client’s concerns more deeply to provide tailored solutions
4. Clear and transparent communication helps set expectations, leading to less disappointments/misunderstanding
5. Focusing on gratitude and positivity improves overall health and well-being, which is beneficial for you and your clients

Take a look at some resources available for free from the Member Assistance Program such as eCourses on resilience, responsible optimism, resolving conflict, and taking control of your mood.

Curious about your EI and skills you can build? Explore some of these tests

1. Mind tools (free; under two minutes)
<https://www.mindtools.com/pages/article/ei-quiz.htm>
2. IHHP (free; two minutes)
<https://www.ihhp.com/free-eq-quiz/>
3. Psychology Today (45 mins; receive a free snapshot report, with the option to purchase a detailed report for $9.95 USD. The full report sets out strengths, limitations and action steps)
<https://www.psychologytoday.com/ca/tests/personality/emotional-intelligence-test>
4. 6seconds.org - Brain Brief profile (10 minutes; $10 USD, gives you a snapshot of your brain's current style for processing emotional and cognitive data, and comes with a free "Brain Brief Interpretation Guide," an e-book about Brain Styles)
<https://www.6seconds.org/tools/sei/profiles/brain-brief-profile/>

* Daniel Coleman, Emotional Intelligence, 10th ed (New York: Bantam Dell, 2006).

Putting the fire out:

Dealing with the stress of a malpractice claim

There is simply no doubt about it: making an error or having an action commenced against you is stressful, even for the most successful lawyers. And because almost half of Ontario lawyers in private practice will face a malpractice claim at least once in their career, at some point this stress will be a reality for many lawyers.

From my years of handling professional negligence claims, I have seen lawyers react to this situation in different ways including fear, anxiety, embarrassment, and even anger.

The initial call with a lawyer is one of the most rewarding parts of my job. I am often meeting someone for the first time, learning about their practice, their firm, their clients and their current issue. For my part, I try to assess whether there is a problem that can be fixed or made to go away quickly. For the insured's part, once they get over their initial fear and anxiety and realize they will be helped through the claim and defended as appropriate, they usually feel more comfortable.

Embarrassment

Many insureds experience anxiety over the potential of people finding out about the error or alleged error at issue. This can be tough, for example, in a major litigation file where the insured's error (or potential error) might be discussed in an endorsement or reasons. Worries over losing the client, unsupportive partners, or judgmental peers can be hard to balance with the ongoing practice of law – all while being named a defendant in a negligence action.

If it is some consolation... remember, almost everyone makes an error at some point. Given the statistics, insureds who are willing to confide in colleagues will likely find that they are not alone in having a claim.

Anger

Some insureds are angry that they have been sued or that there is a suggestion that they have made an error. This is especially the case in situations where, in fact, no error has been made. Most insureds get over this anger fairly quickly, but some remain intensely angry throughout the life of the claim. This makes, not only the initial call, but all subsequent calls, challenging. The relationship with the insured usually balances out once they realize that the matter is moving to a resolution and, angry or not, we will assist them.

However, this kind of reaction to a claim emphasizes why it is so important to report a claim or potential claim to LAWPRO. Anger can lead to bad decision making such as retaliatory steps or aggressive letters that might actually undermine the insured's position. Reporting the potential claim and allowing another professional to deal with the situation enables the insured to step back and take a break from the confrontation. Keep in mind that having a claim made against you does not mean it is a valid claim. In fact, almost 40 per cent of claim files are closed with no payment at all (including defence costs).

Fear

I have also worked with insureds who are so overwhelmed by the situation that they can barely relay the facts. Take Carol (name has been changed), for example. She negotiated the settlement of her client's divorce proceedings which included each spouse retaining equal share of their holdings in a company they owned together with another party. Only after the final Order was signed did Carol learn that, because the class of her client's shares was different than that of her husband's, there would be an unequal tax effect of $750,000 each year going forward. Carol had $2 million in insurance coverage, including excess insurance – far less than the many millions in potential damages. I could barely hear Carol at the end of our initial call when she whispered, "I am going to lose my house."

Carol was often in my thoughts over the next few weeks. I wondered whether she was getting any sleep at all, and whether she had someone to confide in. In the end, there was good news: the matter was repaired and the file closed without any damages having to be paid and without Carol losing her house. That is another rewarding part of my job: telling an insured that their matter has been resolved.

Denial/Avoidance

All too often, I see cases in which insureds are so stressed about an error, that they can't bring themselves to report it at all or have waited a significant period of time before doing so. These insureds simply cannot deal with the situation. Once a report is made, some of these insureds avoid dealing with the matter and will not return our phone calls or correspondence. This, of course, makes an already difficult situation worse. The delay in reporting may result in circumstances where it is too late for LAWPRO to repair an error or defend an action. Failing to cooperate may also result in a breach of the insured's obligations under the Policy. Both situations can result in a denial of coverage.

Remember, no good will come from a delay in reporting a claim. Reporting a claim as soon as possible allows LAWPRO to provide early intervention and your best defence.

Making it through

The good news is that 83 per cent of LAWPRO's claims are closed with no finding of liability or indemnity payment. While dealing with a claim is stressful, we are here to help. If you are feeling overwhelmed by an error or a claim against you, consider taking the time to check in with a trusted friend or colleague. If you do not feel comfortable sharing your situation with someone you know, the Member Assistance Program provides confidential peer counselling. ■

Martine M. Morin is Unit Director & Counsel, Claims at LAWPRO

Mindfulness and Lawyer Well-Being

Dr. Thomas G.W. Telfer
Professor
Western University Faculty of Law

ttelfer@uwo.ca
www.linkedin.com/in/thomasgwtelfer/

Mindfulness and Mental Health Resource List

Free Guided Meditations by Mindfulness Without Borders:

<https://soundcloud.com/mindfulnesswithoutborders>

Free Guided Meditations by Calm

https://www.calm.com/blog/take-a-deep-breath?utm_source=lifecycle&utm_medium=email&utm_campaign=difficult times subs 031720

Phone Apps for Guided Meditations:

Calm (subscription based after 10 sessions)
 Headspace (subscription based after 10 sessions)
 Insight Timer (free)
 Ten Percent Happier (try for free and then subscription based)

Free Resources on Mindfulness for Lawyers

<https://www.mindfulnessforlawyers.com/resources>

Mindfulness Books

1. General

Dan Harris, Meditation for Fidgety Skeptics (New York: Spiegel & Grau, 2017).

2. Mindfulness and the Practice of Law

Jeena Cho & Karen Gifford, The Anxious Lawyer: An 8-Week Guide to a Joyful and Satisfying Law Practice through Mindfulness and Meditation (Chicago, IL: ABA Publishing, 2016).

Nathalie Martin et al, Lawyering from the Inside Out: Learning Professional Development Through Mindfulness and Emotional Intelligence (Cambridge: Cambridge University Press, 2018).

Join Mindfulness in Law Society

<https://www.mindfulnessinlawsociety.org/>

LSO Mental Health Resources

<https://lso.ca/lawyers/well-being-resource-centre>

LSO Member Assistance Program 1-855-403-8922.

https://lso.ca/lawyers/well-being-resource-centre/member-assistance-program-\(1\))

Talk Suicide Canada 1-833-456-4566

<https://talksuicide.ca/>

National Study on the Psychological Health Determinants of Legal Professionals in Canada: Towards a Healthy and Sustainable Practice of Law in Canada, Phase I, 2020-2022 Research Report
https://flsc.ca/wp-content/uploads/2022/10/EN_Preliminary-report_Cadieux-et-al_Universite-de-Sherbrooke_FINAL.pdf

National Study on the Health & Wellness Determinants of Legal Professionals in Canada,
 PHASE I | 2020-2022, TARGETED RECOMMENDATIONS https://flsc-s3-storage-pub.s3.ca-central-1.amazonaws.com/FINAL_RECOMMENDATIONS_Cadieux%20et%20al.2022.pdf

Resources Mentioned in Presentation

Emily Nielsen and John Paul Minda, “The Mindful Lawyer: Investigating the Effects of Two Online Mindfulness Programs on Self-Reported Well-Being in the Legal Profession” (2021) 63: 12 J of Occup & Env’tl Medicine 871.

Judson Brewer, Unwinding Anxiety: New Science Shows How to Break the Cycles of Worry and Fear to Heal Your Mind (2021).

Sharon Salzberg, Real Happiness: The Power of Meditation (2011).

Kate Murphy, You’re Not Listening: What you’re Missing and Why it Matters (2019).

Daniel Goleman, Emotional Intelligence: Why it Can Matter More than IQ (2005).

Shailini George, The Law Student’s Guide to Doing Well and Being Well (2021).

Resources and CPD for Lawyers

LAWPRO's Practice Management Resources
LAWPRO's Practice Tips Sheets	Helpful tip sheets organized by type of practice error which provide ways to avoid common mistakes. Includes tips on delegation, managing deadlines, conflicts of interest, and other categories.
Table of Ontario Mentoring Programs	A helpful table of various mentoring programs offered by legal groups and associations for Ontario lawyers
Technology Products for Lawyers and Law Firms	A helpful table of software solutions for lawyers
Additional resources
LSO: Guide to Opening Your Law Practice	Law Society of Ontario guidance on opening a law practice and preparing a business plan.
Additional CPD for lawyers
Protecting your firm against fraud	This pre-recorded program from April 2023 draws on actual frauds and close calls and reviews the most recent fraud efforts targeting lawyers, law firms and their clients. It provides practical tips to help lawyers manage ID verification, identity fraud, and other scams.
Continuing to manage – Mental health, resilience and resources	In this pre-recorded program, members of the legal community join LAWPRO and the TLA in conversation about managing mental health. The session addresses a range of issues including how we can keep connected, find mentors and engage with resources.

SPEAKER BIOS

Michael Herman

Michael Herman is General Counsel and a Toronto-based business law partner at Gowling WLG. With more than 40 years of experience, Michael is highly regarded as a strategic adviser to a broad range of clients, with a particular focus on entrepreneurial, privately held companies, mid-market private equity funds and investment institutions. He advises these clients on M&A, corporate development, corporate finance and other complex business matters.

In addition to his background in private practice, Michael spent a number of years in senior executive positions at various multi-national public corporations, where he was responsible for strategic planning and direction, asset acquisitions and dispositions, strategic partnerships, debt and equity offerings, corporate governance and other corporate-wide marketing and investor relations activities.

Michael is a strong advocate for mental health and wellness at Gowling WLG and within the broader legal community. Through his ongoing work to raise awareness and eliminate stigma, he hopes to make it easier for anyone experiencing mental illness to come forward and seek help without fear of judgment.

As a mental health champion, Michael has spoken extensively and worked collaboratively with various organizations over the past several years. These include CivicAction, the Canadian Bar Association, the Law Society of Ontario, Made of Millions Foundation, the Mental Health Commission of Canada, the Canadian Mental Health Association and the Conference Board of Canada. In September 2020, Michael joined the Board of Directors of the Institute for Advancements in Mental Health, a solutions-oriented charitable organization that supports, innovates and drives change for better mental health.

Ronit Kaufman

Ronit Kaufman holds an LL.B and M.Div and began her career in corporate law in Venezuela. In 2007, she immigrated to Canada with her family. Presently, she serves as a Staff Clinician at Homewood Health, the Member Assistance Program provider for Ontario's legal profession. In this capacity, Ronit manages the Peer Support Program and delivers workshops and presentations to a range of community groups, including lawyers and law students. With over two decades of experience working with diverse populations, she specializes in addressing mental health concerns, such as anxiety, depression, addiction, career stress, and trauma.

Martine M. Morin

Martine M. Morin is Unit Director and Counsel at LAWPRO in the Litigation Unit and manages claims in all areas of law. Before joining LAWPRO, Martine practiced commercial litigation with a small Toronto firm.

Dr. Thomas Telfer

Dr. Thomas Telfer is a Professor at Western University, Faculty of Law in London, ON Canada. He has published widely in the fields of bankruptcy and legal history.

Professor Telfer also has an interest in mindfulness education. In 2017, he introduced a highly successful non-credit mindfulness course to first year Western Law students and the following year he received the Leadership in Wellness Award of Recognition which recognizes Western faculty members who promote the mental health of their students.

In 2018, he was awarded a three-year Teaching Fellowship at Western to develop mindfulness and mental health education initiatives.

In the fall of 2019, Professor Telfer offered Mindfulness and the Legal Profession as a new upper year academic credit course at Western Law. The course has now been offered 3 times.

He is a frequent speaker on mindfulness and mental health. Professor Telfer has facilitated over 100 mindfulness workshops for lawyers, judges, doctors, professors and students. He has led mindfulness seminars for the Law Societies of Ontario, Saskatchewan, Newfoundland and Labrador and the Legal Education Society of Alberta. Stories about his mindfulness work have appeared in Canadian Lawyer, on podcasts and on CBC Radio.

Shawn Erker

Shawn Erker is the Legal Writer and Content Manager in the Claims Prevention & Stakeholder Relations department at LAWPRO. Prior to joining LAWPRO, Shawn practised as a civil litigator in British Columbia in a full-service national firm after clerking at the British Columbia Court of Appeal.

He graduated from UBC Law where he served as Editor-in-Chief of the UBC Law Review.